Commentary

Performance

May returns were positive but somewhat muted by seasonally adjusted spread widening, which is not surprising given the amount of new issuance and growth in the market in May.

Portfolio Commentary

Portfolio turnover and activity was extremely high in May, and this will carry over into the first half of June as well. We continue to see "more of the same" types of deals issued, which suits us fine.

Catastrophe Events

There were no significant catastrophes that had any impact on the portfolio.

A series of severe convective storm events impacted the central, southern and eastern US through the month. May is typically a heavy severe convective storm month in the US, so it was not surprising to have these storms. Fortunately, there were no large, outsized events in the month and we estimate that the aggregate tally of losses will be much less than the severe storm losses in May 2024.

PCS issued a loss update on Hurricane Milton (2024) reducing its insured industry loss estimate from $18.5 billion to $17.1 billion.

Market Overview

May 2025 was the busiest month on record for the cat bond issuances. The month saw 16 (18 if one were to count joint issuers separately) different sponsors issuing $6.2 billion of cat bonds. The slew of issuances also brought five new sponsors to the market, with three of them covering risks primarily in the U.S. Northeast.

With only $380 million of maturities in May, the market grew significantly during the month. Seasonally adjusted spreads widened due to the large volume of deals, but the market held well considering the size of the growth it experienced. Expected maturities in June are $2.5 billion vs. an anticipated issuance of ~$2.0 billion, and we would expect spreads to tighten in June.

*Partial month performance from January 13, 2025.
Past performance is not an indicator of future performance and current or future trends. The performance values refer to the net asset value and are calculated without the commission and costs incurred on issue, redemption, or swapping (e.g. transaction and custody costs of the investor). The fund does not include the security of capital which is characteristic of a deposit with a bank or building society. The indications are based on figures denominated in USD. If this currency is different from the currency of the country in which the investor is resident, the return may increase or decrease as a result of currency fluctuations. Distributions from income distributing share classes are captured in the above performance.

[1]Portfolio yield to maturity. The total yield of a portfolio based on coupon and estimated collateral income and accretion/amortization, i.e. “pull to par”; quoted gross of fees and expenses charged at the class level but net of financing costs.
[2]Portfolio expected loss. The long-term annual probability of loss of principal, severity weighted, as determined by the use of independent, commercial catastrophe models.
[3]Weighted average maturity (years). Capital-weighted years-to-maturity of portfolio investment holdings.
[4]Number of positions. The number of individual securities held in the portfolio.
[5]The "Public cat bond" category is 144A deals, "insurance debt" is any private insurance debt issuance, and any other non-144A security types are in the "private ILS" category.
[6]Max 1:100 year event loss. Maximum loss to the portfolio produced by any single event with a 100 year ‘return period’ as modelled by Fermat Capital, based primarily on the use of independent commercial catastrophe models.
[7]Reference Rate. Collateral yield, which varies by security and can be based on US Treasury Money Market rates, or 3 or 6 month LIBOR/EURIBOR rates.
[8]Portfolio yield spread. Portfolio yield to maturity minus the Reference Rate.
