Quarterly comment

The ABN AMRO Parnassus U.S. ESG Equities Fund outperformed the MSCI USA during the first quarter. Stock selection was the primary driver of outperformance, while sector allocation also contributed. Stock selection had a positive impact in Financials but a negative effect in Communication Services. Within sector allocation, overweights in the Materials and Health Care sectors buoyed relative results the most, while a lack of exposure to the Energy sector detracted. Within stock selection, the three greatest contributors were Waste Management, Intercontinental Exchange and AutoZone. The three largest detractors were Salesforce, Broadcom and Amazon.com. During the quarter, we sold our positions in D.R. Horton and Verizon Communications and added new positions in Brown & Brown, Advanced Micro Devices and ServiceNow. The strategy exited the quarter most overweight in Financials followed by Materials. The largest underweights were Communication Services and Energy (no exposure). As we look into the year ahead, we are not shying away from risk but remain mindful that proposed fiscal and trade policies are causing substantial volatility and uncertainty. In this environment, we are pursuing opportunities among high-quality resilient defensive stocks and adding strategically in other areas with secular growth potential. Our decades of investment experience through a variety of market conditions help us navigate this uncertain economy with confidence. We remain steadfast in our focus on company fundamentals and deep research to support our conviction in the holdings we select for our concentrated portfolios. In the face of uncertainty, we also continue to be optimistic about long-term opportunities in artificial intelligence beneficiaries, such as the infrastructure providers, the hyperscalers and software companies that are building the computing foundation of the future.
