Volatility is a statistical measure of the dispersion of returns for a portfolio or market index. In most cases, the higher the volatility, the riskier.

Tracking Error is the standard deviation of the difference between the portfolio return and the desired investment benchmark return.

Sharpe Ratio is a ratio used to measure risk-adjusted performance. It is calculated by subtracting the risk-free rate from the rate of return for a portfolio and dividing the result by the standard deviation of the portfolio returns.

Quarterly comment

Emerging market equities, as measured by the MSCI Emerging Markets Index (MSCI EM), rose in 2025’s first quarter, outperforming developed market equities (MSCI World Index) by the widest quarterly margin since 2022. Global equity markets saw a reversal in leadership in the first quarter, to the benefit of emerging market—and particularly China, which was the largest country contributor to the MSCI EM. Chinese equities rose by 15 percent, significantly outperforming the index. Unlike the September 2024 rally, which was driven by stimulus speculation, the year-to-date gains appeared to be more rooted in optimism around technological innovation and commercialization potential. Leadership within emerging markets was narrow in the first quarter. Just three Chinese companies—Alibaba, Tencent, and Xiaomi—accounted for over 80 percent of the index’s rise. The index’s top four contributors were all from China. Despite positive index performance, less than half of the index constituents traded higher, and the median stock fell by roughly 60 basis points. From a style perspective, value outperformed growth, with the MSCI Emerging Markets Value Index outpacing the MSCI Emerging Markets Growth Index by the most since 2023. Taiwan and India—strong performers in 2024—were the largest detractors from the index during the quarter. Consumer discretionary and financials were the top sector contributors to the MSCI EM’s rise, while information technology was the sole sector detractor. Emerging Markets Growth lagged the MSCI EM amid the broader global decline in growth stocks. Despite this style headwind, the strategy outperformed the MSCI Emerging Markets Growth Index—an encouraging sign that the lessons applied following 2022, including a greater focus on earnings stability and end-market diversity, are strengthening portfolio resilience. Security selection within information technology was the largest relative detractor, offsetting the strong contribution from security selection within India. From a country perspective, India and Taiwan were the strategy’s top relative contributors, while China and Argentina were the top detractors. From a sector standpoint, communication services and financials contributed most to relative results. Information technology and materials were the top detractors. The top individual absolute contributors were Bajaj Finance, Sea, Tencent, MercadoLibre, and BYD. The top individual absolute detractors were Taiwan Semiconductor, Globant, Apollo Hospitals, Bank Central Asia, and ASPEED Technology. In the first quarter Emerging Markets Growth completed the purchases of ASPEED Technology, Eternal, FPT, International Container Terminal Services, Meituan, Phoenix Mills, and Walmart de México. It completed the sales of Alibaba, Americana Restaurants, Asian Paints, Tata Consultancy Services, and XP.
