Risk Warnings

For complete information on risks, refer to the legal documents. Property and land can be illiquid and difficult to sell, so the fund may not be able to sell such investments when desired and at the intended price. The value of property is generally a matter of an independent valuer's opinion and may not be realised. Real estate investments are typically non listed on regulated markets and need to be valued via the application of appropriate models (potentially applied by independent experts): this may lead to inaccurate valuations which may not be reflected into transaction prices. Changes in interest rates, rental yields, FX rates, market trends and general economic conditions may result in fluctuations in the value of the assets and of the fund and in the level of cash-flows generated. Real estate investments are exposed to counterparty risk, which is the risk that a counterpart is unable to deal with its obligations. The fund may use derivatives (complex instruments) and borrowings, which may result in the fund being significantly leveraged and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. Real estate investments can be exposed to new sustainability-related regulatory requirements and trends that may negatively affect the value of those assets which are not compliant and can envisage significant costs to be invested to comply or to simply improve their sustainability profile. In addition, real estate investments can be also significantly exposed to negative economic effects stemming from climate change, natural disasters and the general preference of investors for assets with better sustainability features. Real estate investments are labour-intensive and present a significant amount of human/manual inputs and activities, hence potentially exposed to several types operational risks that may affect areas such as administrations, operations, reporting and others. The underlying funds might make use of debt to finance investments which may result in the fund being more leveraged and may result in greater fluctuations in the value of the fund. Many Real Estate investments are illiquid, meaning that the fund may not be able to sell them quickly at a fair price and/or that the redemptions may be delayed due to illiquidity of the underlying investments.
