

Fund Description

The Fund aims to deliver attractive absolute returns with relatively low volatility and correlation to most major markets by using relative value and arbitrage fund strategies. To achieve the investment objective, the Investment Manager dynamically allocates capital and risk across multiple relative value and arbitrage sub-strategies within equity and fixed income markets. The Investment Manager intends to access these equities, corporate and government bond markets directly or through a range of derivatives instruments linked to these markets, including contracts for difference, Total Return Swaps, credit default swaps, futures and options. In particular, the Fund may make use of Total Return Swaps to gain exposure to portions of the portfolio. The Fund may also invest in asset-backed securities including mortgage-backed securities. The Investment Manager's multi-level approach to portfolio management allows it to combine bottom-up analysis of specific trade ideas with top-down views and decisions by the co-CIOs. The Investment Manager's bottom-up approach to capital allocation makes it possible to dynamically shift capital to the trades it believes are most attractive across all business groups and their various business units and named strategies. No one trade idea or strategy dominates the portfolio, and the Fund aims to continually evolve to capture new opportunities and add new strategies. The Fund is actively managed and is not managed in reference to a benchmark.

There can be no assurance that the investment objective of the Fund will be achieved and investment results may vary substantially over time. Investment in the Fund places an investor's capital at risk. The price and value of investments may fluctuate and investors may lose all or a substantial portion of their investment. Past performance is not indicative of future results. Please refer to the Prospectus before making any final investment decisions.

Sector Exposure as % of Fund Size

Source: HBK Capital Management

“Long” refers to the total long market value of the portfolio. “Short” refers to the total short market value of the portfolio. Sector Exposure as a % of Fund Size generally reflects instrument-level netting (i.e. a single instrument to which the Fund has both long and short exposure will be netted and reflected only as long or short, as applicable). For equity derivatives, HBK generally use delta equivalents, except for convertible securities, which are included at market value. For certain off-balance sheet items like futures and swaps, HBK use the market value of a similar on-balance sheet instrument. For example, for credit default swap positions, HBK generally use the market value of a similar bond position. For certain fixed income instruments and certain related derivatives, HBK adjust exposures to actual or, if necessary, modelled 10-year equivalents. Instruments are categorized according to the Global Industry Classification Standard category of the issuer. Index instruments are generally decomposed into their underlying sector exposures.

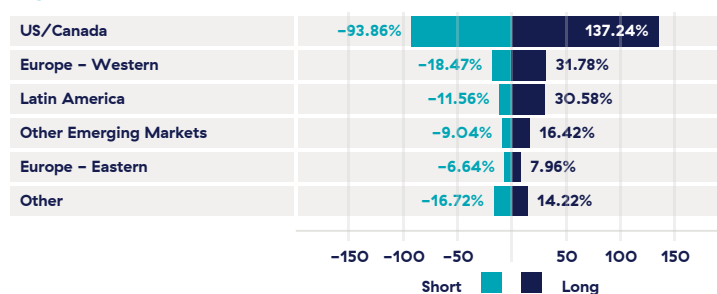

Strategy Exposure as % of Fund Size

Source: HBK Capital Management

“Long” refers to the total long market value of the portfolio. “Short” refers to the total short market value of the portfolio. Strategy Exposure as a % of Fund Size generally does not reflect instrument-level netting (i.e., a single instrument to which the Fund has both long and short exposure may be categorized both as a long exposure for the purposes of one strategy and as a short exposure for the purposes of another strategy). For equity derivatives, we generally use delta equivalents, except for convertible securities, which are included at market value. For certain off-balance sheet items like futures and swaps, we use the market value of a similar on-balance sheet instrument. For example, for credit default swap positions, we generally use the market value of a similar bond position. For certain fixed income instruments and certain related derivatives, we adjust exposures to actual or, if necessary, modelled 10-year equivalents. “Strategy” refers to HBK’s categorization of each trade idea. Such organization of trade ideas is inherently subjective, and often a trade idea under one strategy type could reasonably be categorized under one or more other strategy types.

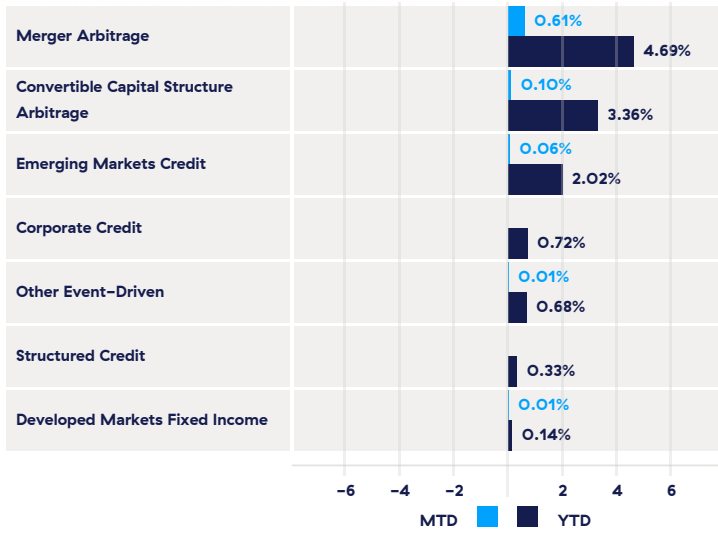

Region Exposure as % of Fund Size

Source: HBK Capital Management

“Long” refers to the total long market value of the portfolio. “Short” refers to the total short market value of the portfolio. Region Exposure as a % of Fund Size generally reflects instrument-level netting (i.e. a single instrument to which the Fund has both long and short exposure will be netted and reflected only as long or short, as applicable). For equity derivatives, HBK generally use delta equivalents, except for convertible securities, which are included at market value. For certain off-balance sheet items like futures and swaps, HBK use the market value of a similar on-balance sheet instrument. For example, for credit default swap positions, HBK generally use the market value of a similar bond position. For certain fixed income instruments and certain related derivatives, HBK adjust exposures to actual or, if necessary, modelled 10-year equivalents. Index instruments are generally decomposed into their underlying region exposures.

Gross P&L Attribution

Source: HBK Capital Management

Reflects trading P&L in each strategy before fees. Amounts are based on HBK's calculation of P&L after adjustments, if any, to reconcile P&L differences between HBK and the fund administrator. The amount of any such adjustment is determined by HBK, in its sole discretion, based on the relative impact of the known differences in pricing sources on each strategy. Because HBK and the fund administrator may (and often do) arrive at different calculations for P&L due to differences in pricing sources (among other things), HBK's calculated attribution of P&L reflected herein will inherently vary from the attribution that HBK would calculate using the fund administrator's P&L, and such differences could be material. "Strategy" refers to HBK's categorisation of each trade idea. Such organisation of trade ideas is inherently subjective, and often a trade idea under one strategy type could reasonably be categorised under one or more other strategy types.

Allocation of Risk Based Capital

Source: HBK Capital Management

HBK internally calculated metric that reflects judgment-based haircuts according to broad trade type and asset class designations. This metric is intended generally to approximate the allocation of risk across strategy types. The actual risk in any given trade will depend on market conditions and many other factors and could exceed these estimates by an unlimited amount. "Strategy" refers to HBK's categorisation of each trade idea. Such organisation of trade ideas is inherently subjective, and often a trade idea under one strategy type could reasonably be categorised under one or more other strategy types.

Monthly Commentary

Positive performance in November was led by the Merger Arbitrage sub-strategy, with additional, albeit smaller, contributions from Convertible Capital Structure Arbitrage and Emerging Markets. Within Merger Arbitrage, gains were supported by favorable deal-specific developments across several positions as well as constructive broader strategy tailwinds. In both Convertible Capital Structure Arbitrage and Emerging Markets, numerous modest winners outweighed smaller detractors, resulting in net positive performance.

There were no detractors at the sub-strategy level in November.

The commentary and analyses herein reflect opinions of certain personnel of HBK Capital Management ("HBK" or "we"). Such opinions are inherently subjective and other persons could reasonably form different opinions under the same or similar facts and circumstances. You should not rely on the opinions expressed herein, as they are not intended to reflect facts or predict or guarantee any particular outcomes. HBK and the fund administrator may (and often do) arrive at different calculations for P&L due to differences in pricing sources (among other things). HBK's calculations of P&L reflected herein will inherently vary from the fund administrator's calculations, and such differences could be material. The commentary and analyses herein are based upon HBK's calculation of P&L, and due to the differences between the P&L calculations referenced above, HBK's commentary and analyses could reflect P&L that is materially different from the P&L calculated by the fund administrator.

Risk Considerations

The risk category has been calculated based upon simulation of the Fund's performance using historical data, which may not be a reliable indicator of the Fund's future risk profile. The risk category shown is not guaranteed and may change over time. The lowest category (category 1) does not mean that the investment is risk-free.

The Fund is rated 4 due to the nature of its investments which include the following risks:

- Credit risk: The risk that the issuer of the fixed-income security or related instrument held within the Fund may not pay income or repay capital to the Fund when due. Potential or actual credit rating downgrades may increase the level of perceived risk.
- Derivatives risk: The Fund may use derivatives for investment purposes. Derivatives are highly sensitive to changes in the value of the asset on which they are based, which may result in greater fluctuations in the value of the Fund. The impact to the Fund can be greater where derivatives are used in an extensive or complex way.
- Mortgages and Asset Backed Securities: The Fund may invest in securities linked to pools of residential or commercial mortgages or other similar assets. In addition to interest rate, leverage, credit and other risks listed herein, additional risks from such securities include underlying real estate or other asset valuation risks, cash flow risks from prepayment or loan extension, legal structure and other risks.
- High-Yield Securities: The Fund may invest in "high yield" bonds as part of its investment strategy and other debt securities which are rated in the lower rating categories by the various credit rating agencies (or in comparable non-rated securities). Debt securities in the lower categories are subject to greater risk of loss of principal and interest than higher-rated securities and are generally considered to be predominantly speculative with respect to the issuer's capacity to pay interest and repay principal.
- Equity risk: The risk that the value of equities and equity-related securities within the Fund may be affected by stock market movements.

The following are additional risks which are not captured in the risk category:

- Liquidity risk: The risk that insufficient buyers or sellers to an investment, or an impairment in the market may affect the price or the ability to sell such investment within the Fund.
- Counterparty risk: The risk that the other party to a transaction with the Fund may fail to fulfil its contractual obligations and may expose the Fund to financial losses.
- Distressed securities risk: Distressed securities are securities of issuers in extremely weak financial condition or are perceived to have a deteriorating financial condition that will affect their future ability to meet their financial obligations.
- Currency risk: The risk that the investment's value may change due to fluctuations in exchange rates between currencies.
- Event Driven Risk: The Fund will take positions on companies involved in mergers, acquisitions, reorganizations and other corporate events, which may not complete or may not have the effect foreseen, which could lead to losses.
- Interest rate risk: The risk that fluctuations in interest rates which may affect the value of certain investments in the Fund.
- Emerging market risk: The Fund may invest in less economically or politically developed markets which can involve greater risks than well developed economies. Political/economic instability, lack of liquidity or transparency, or safekeeping issues should be considered.

This is not an exhaustive list of the risks. Other risks apply, differ by share class and are subject to change. For more information on the risks please read the prospectus of the Fund and KID/KIID, in particular the risks section.
